DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-20 remain rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mitchell, and Wiedmann et al., in view of the combination of Yotka et al. and Nakel et al. The references and rejection are taken as cited in a previous Office action.

Applicants' arguments filed December 06, 2002, have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. At pages 4-5 of the response, applicants discuss the intended use of the claimed beverage, in that "the object of the present invention was to compensate for the fading sweetness of a peptide sweetener", rather than "to stabilize aspartame or to slow down its decomposition." The decomposition of the oligosaccharide is to compensate for the loss of sweetness from the decomposed peptide sweetener, both acts of which are due to the low pH of the beverage. Applicants state that none of the references provide a teaching of this concept, but rather the references "try to stabilize or reduce the peptide decomposition."

This is not deemed persuasive for the reasons of record. As previously stated on the record, the "discovery" of a property of a composition (whether it is true that applicants first "discovered" it or not), is not synonymous with an "invention". The fact that applicants may have recognized another advantage which would flow naturally from following the suggestion of the prior art cannot be the basis for patentability when the differences would otherwise be obvious. See Ex parte Obiaya, 227 USPQ 58, 60 (Bd. Pat. App. & Inter. 1985). Whether the oligosaccharides (inulins, oligofructose or fructans) act to (a) stabilize the peptide sweetener from decomposing, or (b) act as a substrate supply that, when decomposed themselves, serve to compensate for the decomposition of the peptide sweetener, is irrelevant to the claimed composition. Simply because applicants theorize (or even "discovered") that the action of the oligosaccharides in the beverage is (b) as stated above, rather than (a), this does not change the fact that the combination of references as cited of record, would have provided ample guidance and motivation for one of ordinary skill in the art to have produced the invention that is instantly claimed. The referenced product would be the same as that claimed, absent any clear and convincing evidence and/or arguments to the contrary.

Conclusion

* NOTE: The previous rejection under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) of Hoek et al., is withdrawn, in view of applicants' arguments.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
